Sadly this is not fake news, a conspiracy theory or AI created science fiction. America has a domestic terrorist problem. Living in the USA is a large diverse group of people who include some of our police and other first responders and a large retiree population who engage in terrorism, by any definition of it, for a seeming multitude of reasons. Foremost among them appears to be avoiding a prison cell and extraordinarily effort is used to this end.

The pic included shows a tattooed or likely permanently burned on scars from 10 years of attacks by these terrorists who's weapons appear to be able to bridge the nervous system and inflict nerve pain and damage, along with many other clearly torture like effects. An MD advised that these burns are like permanently burned in skin. Similar burns on it.
