The Nature of My Disability under ADA – Sickness from Wireless

I have become sick from exposure to wireless technology radiation - to radio and microwave frequency radiation used for wireless technology. The condition I suffer from is termed Electromagnetic Sensitivity (ES), or Microwave Sickness - the original and more accurate name. I was not told this radiation can cause harm, and I was misled by the US government, the FCC, and the wireless industry who state that it is safe.

The Symptoms Which I Experience When Exposed to Wireless

When I am exposed to radiation from wireless sources such as cell phones, Wi-Fi, cell towers, Wireless smart meters, and other wireless devices, I experience adverse health effects including: Head pain, diminished thinking ability. And with ongoing exposure that I can't get away from, I lose balance and ability to walk without holding onto things. Sometimes vertigo too.

The Effects on My Life from Developing Wireless Radiation Sickness and How My Rights Have Been Violated:

Most cafes are out of bounds for me due to the number of wifi users. Public transit is a challenge since I'm surrounded by people using cell phones for conversation or internet. Attending city council meetings has become impossible due to all the antennas on the buildings and citizens with phones and other devices.

Sitting at my desk 3' away from the 4 smart meters for my duplex has made me ill--so I am forced to "opt out," paying for my own opt out and my neighbor's (who was kind enough to put in the request)--when it shouldn't cost me anything. Having to pay is a violation of the ADA. Having smart meters forced on me to begin with is a violation of the ADA, and a violation of privacy but that's another topic.

Moreover, PG&E says they can't change the meters to true analog meters due to something about the old wiring in the house, which makes no sense at all. In 1950 most houses had old wiring and analog meters. So given that I still feel woozey at times sitting at my desk, I'm not 100% sure the "smart" has been eliminated, yet I still am billed for such. How much extra have I had to pay over the years due to Radio Frequency sensitivity? A lot!

When being in many public places becomes a health hazard, my rights are violated. When I can't attend city council meetings, my rights are being violated. And that is already true. If 5G goes through and antennas are everywhere, I truly have no idea what I will do or where I will be able to live safely.
