

STATEMENT REGARDING ALLEGED SURVEILLANCE, HARASSMENT AND TECHNOLOGY-RELATED INCIDENTS

I was born in October 1991 and I am 34 years old. In 2022, I moved to France and got married. From that period onward, I experienced a prolonged series of incidents that caused me significant distress and led me to believe that I was being subjected to surveillance, harassment, and possible technology-assisted attacks.

While living in Perpignan, I repeatedly felt that I was being monitored or followed by people around me, including individuals in my neighborhood and members of the wider community. I also became concerned that my cell phone, car, and home may have been accessed, monitored, or otherwise compromised. I did not know who was responsible or how such access could have occurred.

On several occasions, I experienced sensations that I interpreted as possible attacks directed toward my body. I sometimes believed that these incidents involved radiation, laser-based technology, or other forms of remotely operated technology. I also had experiences in which I felt that information from my thoughts or private activities was somehow being accessed. I cannot independently establish what technology, if any, was involved, and I am requesting that these concerns be properly investigated rather than dismissed.

I was also concerned about possible RFID scanning, biosensors, hacking, and other forms of electronic surveillance. At the time, I did not have the technical knowledge necessary to determine whether these technologies were actually being used against me. My concern was based on the experiences and circumstances I was personally observing.

I further experienced what I perceived as slander, stalking attacks, and social harassment. I felt that information about me was being circulated within the community and that certain people were deliberately attempting to damage my reputation. I became concerned that I may have been placed on a blacklist or otherwise targeted through community networks.

I repeatedly communicated these concerns to my husband. Instead of feeling supported, I felt that my concerns were dismissed and that I was characterized as paranoid or mentally unwell. On one occasion, there were attempts to have me taken to a psychiatric facility. This experience made me feel particularly vulnerable because I believed that my reports of harassment and surveillance were not being taken seriously.

These experiences continued for approximately four years and had a profound impact on my daily life, my sense of safety, and my relationships. I also became concerned about what I understood as community policing, informal surveillance, and coordinated monitoring by people around me.

I want to emphasize that this statement describes my experiences, observations, and concerns. I do not claim that I can personally identify the technology involved or definitively establish who was responsible. My purpose in making this statement is to document what happened to me and to request an objective investigation into whether my electronic devices, vehicle, residence, communications, or personal information were unlawfully monitored, accessed, or interfered with.

I respectfully request that any available technical evidence, electronic records, communications, security information, or other objective evidence be examined. I would also like my concerns to be documented without automatically assuming that they are the result of a mental-health condition.

I am providing this statement in good faith because these experiences had a serious and lasting effect on my life, and I believe they deserve to be examined objectively and impartially.
