Brief Comment	In 2013 I had to stop holding a cell phone to my ear because of constant burning pain I felt when I did. So I began using speaker-phone only, and the pain went away, but returned about two years later when transmitting public utility meters REQUIRED for natural gas service were installed. Not only did the pain return to my ear without putting the cellphone there, but I experienced a plethora of other symptoms of microwave sickness. Among them were: Rashes Muscle twitches and sudden weakness Jaw pain and tension Pain and pressure in my head and eyes High pitch ringing in ears, back of throat, and brain stem area Dizziness, vertigo Achy joints Insomnia Loss of control of my limbs Memory problems Inability to type and/or write Inability to read Unusual vaginal bleeding Heart palpitation Pulse racing up to 120 bpm for over 30 minutes while relaxing Night sweats Tinnitus Extreme and debilitating fatigue ALL of my symptoms of microwave sickness began improving immediately once we shielded the radiation continuously pulsing from the utility meters. Two of our dogs also began to have highly disturbing symptoms which also disappeared almost immediately after shielding the radiation. Did they know we shielded? Or were they having biological responses? Humans, animals, the birds, bees, and the entire planet doesn't need more exposure to wireless radio frequency radiation. We DO need a moratorium on wireless expansion across the United States until biological safety is assessed because current levels of wireless RF radiation in the environment are making many people (and their pets) very sick
