Brief Comment	I am an electromagnetically sensitive person. You can't tell by looking at me. I live in the general population, but I cannot carry a cell phone on my body or handle wireless devices, like computer keyboards, nor be around devices which have active 3G/4G antennas. I have become one of those annoying people who ask you to turn off your cell phone if I am going to be able to spend time with you. I didn't ask for it. As near as I can tell there is nothing I can do about it. And I am not alone. I have met people who are much, much more sensitive than I am, people who can no longer live in town, who can no longer live in the general population because they can't tolerate the cell phones and the cell towers. I need ,and those who are or who are becoming or who may become electromagnetically sensitive, need as little EMF as we can get When it comes to exposure limits at best those exposure limits should be reduced At worst the FCC should maintain current exposure limits By no means should exposure limits be increased Thank you for taking the time to read my comments.
