

I've discovered evidence that Red Bluff is a "Potemkin Village" of sorts, a covert hub for criminal activity of a particularly heinous character. There is a widespread and long-standing allegation that the city is a hotbed for the trafficking of minors; this was acknowledged in 1987 by the Los Angeles Times, which described the town as "a modern-day Sodom and Gomorrah." Further, the book "The New Satanists" by nonfiction writer Linda Osborne Blood (published 1994) shed light on the 1989 case of Cynthia Angell, a Red Bluff attorney who was kidnapped and threatened by a Satanist hit-squad when she began investigating Michael Aquino, a now-deceased military officer and founder of the Satanist "Temple of Set," after Red Bluff children identified him as their rapist (one of many such allegations toward Aquino around the country). Meanwhile, it was alleged by Ted Gunderson, a now-deceased senior special agent of the FBI, that historic "Chinese" tunnels in downtown Red Bluff are being used for human trafficking.

(These tunnels are so-called due to a local rumor, which claims they were once used by a Chinese-American immigrant lodge for moving/using opium, or to flee the ethnic-cleansing campaign by Red Bluff's white-supremacist "Anti-Coolie League" in 1886.)

For more info on Aquino's alleged abuse and trafficking involvement, see Isaac Weishaupt's "Michael Aquino: Temple of Set, PsyOps, Satanic Rituals & the Age of Set!"

Red Bluff is widely reported to be one of the most violent, crime-laden cities in the state, and it is notorious in the North State for an unusual frequency of women and girls murdered, raped, gone missing, or dying under dubious circumstances. Californians living in neighboring counties, Butte and Shasta, have commented via Reddit that they are afraid to go near this town, or speak to anyone who lives here because of the rampant crime, abundance of meth, and the gruesome sex-crime scandals which have plagued the town for at least four decades.

It looks like there was a sort of investigation in 1987 that didn't lead to anything.

"We have received many allegations . . . regarding unsolved murders, drugs, a pornography ring involving minors, and narcotics being sold openly around schools to students and faculty members." --Tehama County Grand Jury

Edit: the girl's name is Rashell Ward. She was 14 when she was abducted, raped, and murdered on March 3, 1983. Semen appears to have been collected, but DNA testing has not been done."

You might have a hard time getting a judge to write an order to exhume the body for testing without further hard evidence. But, DNA could be run through GEDMatch which is a public DNA database. If they get any familial DNA matches, a family tree can be made and see if anyone would have been in the area at the time of her murder.

It's how the Golden State Killer was caught after decades of inactivity, and since then dozens of other cold cases have been solved with the same genealogy strategy."

"newkneesforall

I've read estimations that there's enough publicly available dna information available in GEDMatch that everyone in the US could be found through it, though it might start at 3rd or 4th cousin matches. So it's doable, it's just a matter of finding the people who know how to do it and are willing to spend the time.

I really hope her family gets the answers and justice they deserved years ago."

I grew up in Anderson and cottonwood. My family is pretty tied in down there and we don't fuck with any one in red bluff. It rarely ends well."

"Randomsama613

Not overly surprising to me, having grown up in the general area up there. There's a lot of messed up shit going on in the upper 1/4 of California"

Beepbeep_bepis

"Yeah I was going to say, as someone who grew up in the upper 1/2, Iâ€™m glad Iâ€™m not in that upper quarter. Like we already had a rumored meth town, abandoned asylum, and rumored satanists, shit just gets more nutty the more north you go."

"Zetsubou51

Fucking Red Bluff, Redding, Anderson and all of Shasta County is horrendous."

Koenig was Sheriff from 1974 to 1985, he died in 2009, apparently he and a lot of other LEOâ€™s from the area that time were very corrupt. Just too bad he died before he could be brought to justice."

Man. I have been to Red Bluff so many times. This gives me chills. I hope that Sheriff got karmic justice before he kicked the bucket. Imagine if they were still using those tunnels for nefarious purposes??"

"SolidProduct

When I started reading this I thought "wow, this is like RB" I was not surprised to read that it actually was. Rumor has it that if you needed a hitman at that time, the Sheriff's Dept was the place to go."

The place is full of zombies and tweakers now, like many other small towns."

"mroddthedj

Holy shit. I am from red bluff and know about the tunnels but have never heard of this. Crazy shit. Red bluff also where the "girl in the box"/ perfect victim happened although that isnt much of a secret."

"mroddthedj

Yeah some crazy shit! Have you read "the perfect victim"? Its written by the lawyer who represented her. It is crazy. Idk if you are from red bluff or know it well but they talk about a lot of places that I vividly remember. Such a weird place."

"Rashell Ward, 14, was abducted on her way to school and brutally murdered on March 3rd, 1983. It's been 36 years that the person who killed her has gotten away with this horrible crime. Rashell was raped and killed, and her killer left her on the side of the road nearby her home in Red Bluff, CA.

This case is about as cold as Iâ€™ve ever seen one before. I canâ€™t find any articles online about Rashellâ€™s case, and the only reason I know about her murder at all is because her sister posted about it in a Facebook group about unsolved cases that I belong to. Possible articles related to Rashellâ€™s murder came up on paid-for online newspaper record databases, but these articles are likely from right around the time she was murdered and nothing has been written about her since (Iâ€™m not quite ready to subscribe to the newspaper database site to see what the articles said, so I donâ€™t know exactly what all the articles said). I did see a short snippet of only one article mentioning her as one of the 100s of victims that Henry Lee Lucas confessed to killing before he recanted, saying he only confessed to these killings to expose the gullibility of the police.

If anyone can find any more information to add about Rashell's rape and murder please post it! This poor girl still has family members trying to speak up about her death, but it looks like the police, media, and the public have not been listening. Please try to raise awareness for this young girl's case by commenting and adding any further information you find on her case while sleuthing."

"When typed into Russian search engine Yandex, the SRC-USA code combined with SKU numbers of over-priced furniture on Wayfair brought up pictures of young children. In my opinion this was an elaborate hoax designed to discredit real research done by the online community into #PedoGate.

More info on Tom Hanks / Red Bluff connection:

"As a child, several times a year, Hanks would take a long journey on a Greyhound bus, heading to and from the small Northern California town of Red Bluff. He was often alone, and he always sat by the window. In Red Bluff, Hanks would stay with his mother, Janet; after his parents' marriage ruptured when he was 5, he never lived with her, but on holidays he'd visit."

"After their parents divorced, Jim went to Red Bluff, California with his mother while older siblings Tom, Larry, and Sandra remained with their father."

"Did Tom Hanks ever live in Red Bluff California? He never did live in Red bluff but Hanks spent summers here when he was young. His mother and stepfather still live here."

"Hanks's mother lived in Red Bluff, California at the time, and he and two of his siblings would meet at a bus stop for visits with her."
