All types of wireless technology and RF/EMF sources affect me at this stage. I have everything hard-wired in my home. I use a google voice (external mike and speaker), have a modem at front of home (wireless is disabled). My computer and tv connects using an ethernet cable. I ask all people to leave their cells, smart watches outside or put them on airplane mode and leave them at the front door.

I have a limited amount of time that I can wait in a doctor's office that offers wireless and allows other patients to use cell phones. I must sit in a separate room away from anyone using a cell phone. Normally I ask people not to use it near me. Many will very kindly help me (even though they do not understand), but every once in a while, someone will refuse. I must leave the vicinity as my nervous system will react depending on how close or strong the signal is.

It would really be helpful if HHS were to help get the word out that even if others are not affected, there are some in society that are harmed and those people can face dire health effects as a result.

The potential adverse health effects are multiple. If I touch a cell phone that is turned on the response is immediate. I can trace the nerve pathway from the fingers, hand arm into shoulder, up neck behind left ear shoots through various facial nerves to include teeth. Both sides of neck will burn as if on fire. Left eye is affected first but both eyes soon after. The effects are immediate and all places at one time.
