• UNESCO Draft Recommendation on the Ethics of Neurotechnology, Paris 2025.
56. Governments and societies should work together to ensure those harmed by neurotechnology have access to justice and effective remedy, and those engaged in wrongdoing are held accountable.
108. ..due consideration should be given to the dual-use potential of neurotechnology research to avoid its use for malign purposes.
154. Member States should establish or designate national organizations responsible for overseeing and coordinating the regulation, vigilance, and oversight of neurotechnology across relevant government agencies. These coordinating bodies should be tasked with ensuring that legal and regulatory frameworks are consistently applied, that public health and safety are protected, and that ethical standards and human rights are upheld throughout the whole lifecycle of neurotechnology. This includes facilitating inter-agency collaboration, monitoring compliance with national and international standards, and ensuring that data and insights from different regulatory domains are shared effectively to inform decision-making and policy development.
155. Member States should strive to extend and complement their own actions in respect of this Recommendation, by cooperating with all relevant national and international governmental and non-governmental organizations, as well as transnational corporations and scientific organizations, whose activities fall within the scope and objectives of this Recommendation.
158. The monitoring and assessment of the impact of neurotechnology and related ethics policies and practices should be carried out continuously in a systematic way proportionate to the relevant risks. This should be based on internationally agreed frameworks and involve evaluations of private and public institutions. Data collection and processing should be conducted in accordance with international law, national legislation on data protection and data privacy, and the values and principles outlined in this Recommendation. https://unesdoc.unesco.org/ark:/48223/pf0000393395

• Policy Horizons Canada 2020: What is biodigital convergence?
Biodigital convergence is the interactive combination, sometimes to the point of merging, of digital and biological technologies and systems. ..physical integration of biological and digital entities. The physical meshing, manipulating, and merging of the biological and digital are creating new hybrid forms of life and technology, each functioning in the tangible world, often with heightened capabilities. Robots with biological brains and biological bodies with digital brains already exist, as do human-computer and brain-machine interfaces. The medical use of digital devices in humans, as well as digitally manipulated insects such as drone dragonflies and surveillance locusts, are examples of digital technology being combined with biological entities. By tapping into the nervous system and manipulating neurons, tech can be added to an organism to alter its function and purpose. New human bodies and new senses of identity could arise as the convergence continues. https://horizons.service.canada.ca/en/2020/02/11/exploring-biodigital-convergence/index.shtml
